Curriculum Vitae

Young Seok Lee is Associate Professor and Chief of the Department of Orthopaedic Surgery at Hanyang University Guri Hospital, Republic of Korea. He graduated from Hanyang University College of Medicine in 2007 and completed his orthopaedic residency and hand surgery fellowship at the same institution, then served as an army surgeon before leading the hand surgery divisions of West Busan Centum Hospital and W Hospital. He returned to Hanyang in 2021 and has chaired the department since 2025. His clinical and research interests are hand and microsurgery: vascularised bone grafting, nerve grafting and nerve transfer, and biomechanics of upper-limb fracture fixation, together with AI-based opportunistic screening from hand radiographs. He serves on the boards of the Korean Society for Surgery of the Hand, the Korean Society for Microsurgery and the Korean Society for Medical Ethics, and chairs the Insurance Committee of the Korean Society of Bone and Soft Tissue Transplantation.
